MALS to receive visit from ABA President Silkenat

On Tuesday, April 15th, American Bar Association (ABA) President Jim Silkenat will visit Memphis Area Legal Services (MALS) to speak to the staff members to express the ABA's appreciation for their service in affording access to justice to their clients. One of the Association's top priorities is access to justice, and encouraging the legal and broader community to respond to the unmet civil legal needs in disadvantaged communities. The ABA President is in Memphis at the annual invitation of Shep Tate of Martin, Tate, Morrow & Martston P.C. to address the Downtown Rotary Club.

MALS' Executive Director Harrison D. McIver III commented, "we are truly honored to have President Silkenat visit us in our office. It reaffirms the ABA's commitment to not only access to justice but recognition of the important and essential work our staff plays in this community." Founded in 1878, The American Bar Association is one of the world's largest voluntary professional organizations, with nearly 400,000 members and 3,500 entities.
